KASU Celebrates Secretarial Staff on International Secretaries Day

BY: HAMZA MUSA MAKARFI

Kaduna State University (KASU) joined the rest of the world in celebrating its dedicated secretarial staff on the occasion of International Secretaries Day, in recognition of their invaluable contributions to the growth and smooth administration of the institution.

That KASU's secretarial staff deserve to be celebrated is beyond dispute. Their role in the day-to-day functioning of the university remains indispensable, despite the rapid advancement of digital innovation and technology. While some may assume that technology can fully replace their duties, the KASU community strongly acknowledges that the professionalism, discretion, efficiency, and human touch they bring to service delivery cannot be substituted.

During the celebration at the office of the Vice Chancellor, Professor Abdullahi Ibrahim Musa, who was represented by Deputy Vice Chancellors Professors Yusha'u Ibrahim Ango and Muhammad Bashir Ali, members of the Chartered Institute of Professional Secretarial Staff of Nigeria (CIPSSON), KASU Branch, were commended for their dedication and commitment.

Speaking on behalf of the association, the President of CIPSSON KASU Branch, Josiah Kallah Musa, said the day was set aside to honour those who keep offices, institutions, and leaders functioning with accuracy, discretion, and efficiency. He noted that secretarial professionals deserve recognition that reflects the weight of their responsibilities.

At the office of the Registrar, Barr. Samira Umar Balarabe, the warm reception given to the CIPSSON leadership and members reflected a cordial working relationship and a shared commitment to institutional progress.

During discussions, emphasis was placed on the importance of collective efforts towards achieving KASU's strategic goals and objectives. Participants reaffirmed that the dedication of secretarial staff remains central to effective administration, institutional excellence, and the continued advancement of the university.

The celebration ended on a note of appreciation, unity, and renewed resolve by the secretarial workforce to continue rendering quality service in support of KASU's vision of academic excellence and innovation.
