Kaduna State University has recorded another major milestone in its drive for academic and professional excellence as the Department of Nursing Science secured full accreditation from the Nursing and Midwifery Council of Nigeria.

The achievement adds to the reputation of the University's Faculty of Allied Health Sciences, which comprises four departments: Nursing Science, Medical Laboratory Science, Physiotherapy, and Radiography.

In another remarkable development, students of the Departments of Nursing Science and Medical Laboratory Science posted outstanding performances in their recent professional examinations by Medical Laboratory Science Council of Nigeria, recording 98 per cent and 100 per cent success rates, respectively.

The latest feat underscores the commitment of the university to quality teaching and learning, professional training, and the production of highly skilled healthcare personnel capable of meeting national and global standards.

Adding to the excitement within the faculty community, according to Prof. Adamu Ahmad Rufai, Dean Faculty of Allied Health Sciences is the historic expectation that the current academic session will witness the graduation of the pioneer sets of students from the Departments of Nursing Science, Medical Laboratory Science and Radiography.

Vice Chancellor of KASU Professor Abdullahi Ibrahim Musa said the milestone is a significant boost to healthcare education and manpower development, further positioning Kaduna State University as an emerging centre of excellence in medical and allied health sciences education in Nigeria.
